UBS Europe SE completes acquisition of Nordea's Luxembourg-based private banking business

UBS and Nordea announced today that UBS has successfully acquired part of Nordea's Luxembourg-based private banking business.

As announced in January 2018, the transaction covers the acquisition of part of Nordea Bank's business and its integration onto UBS' platform, thereby providing clients access to its global offering and local expertise.

The decision followed a thorough strategic review of Nordea's Private Banking International activities. The strategic review was part of the transformation of Nordea with the aim to better manage risk, focus on the core business and deliver an even better bank for the clients. This led to the decision to concentrate Nordea's private banking activities on the Nordics. The acquisition enables UBS to expand its presence in Europe and further build its position as a key wealth manager for Nordic clients in Europe.

Christine Novakovic, Head of Wealth Management EMEA, said: "Today, we can announce the completion of this important acquisition which enables us to strengthen our business hub in Luxembourg and our position as the leading wealth manager in Europe. With our experienced colleagues from Nordea joining we can tap into our full potential allowing us to deliver the best possible performance to our clients and business partners."

Snorre Storset, Head of Asset & Wealth Management at Nordea, said: "Our aim is to offer the best and most relevant services to our customers, and we are currently increasing our focus on private banking activities in the Nordics. We are certain that with UBS we have found a partner that will deliver high quality and professional advice in line with the needs and requirements of our international private banking clients."
